Public Act No. 17-239 (See Addendum A)

Background

The Department of Correction reserves the use of our highest level of supervision known as Administrative Segregation (AS) status for the most dangerous offenders whose violent behavior has demonstrated their inability to be safely managed in a general population setting. Recommendations for a hearing to determine placement on AS typically follow a significant incident that has proven to jeopardize the safety of the community, correctional staff or other offenders.

Examples of incidents that would meet the threshold for consideration include, but are not limited to:

- An inmate escape from custody;
- An inmate assault against an agency employee; and/or ,
- An inmate related incident involving the use of a dangerous weapon.

Unlike other states, Connecticut does not place offenders on this status indefinitely and the goal is always to correct behavior and return to general population. We utilize a phase system with associated programming aimed to reinforce positive behavior through the gradual reinstatement of privileges.

Furthermore, in recognizing the unique challenges in providing positive behavior modification strategies to a mandated client, the Connecticut Department of Correction ensures that clinical and custodial assessment's, programming and multi-disciplinary reviews occur for each individual. Each of these contributing factors affect the determination on whether or not an inmate is placed or continues as being classified on Administrative Segregation.

Department of Correction Practices and Data Analysis regarding Restrictive Status Placement

Currently, out of a population of approximately 12,471 offenders there are 29 offenders on this status. That means that only .2% of our total population has been administratively placed on AS. A historical review of data related to offenders on this status shows a significant decrease in utilization over the years with the figures hovering between 150-250 between 2003 and 2010. Our success was memorialized in a publication co-authored by the Arthur Liman Public Interest Program at Yale Law School and the Association of State Correctional Administrators (ASCA). The study released in 2015, ranked Connecticut amongst the top five states in the country utilizing effective strategies to minimize the use of Administrative Segregation. Reporting Requirements of Public Act 17-239

Public Act 17-239, An Act Concerning Isolated Confinement and Correctional Staff Training and Wellness created a notable amount of reporting requirements and employee training initiatives.

These reporting requirements include monthly statistics for the calendar year 2019 related to the following inmates classified restrictive statuses:

- Administrative Detention (AD), Punitive Segregation (PS), Transfer Detention (TD), Chronic Discipline (CD) and Special Needs (SN) (See Addendum H),
- Security Risk Group (SRG) (See Addendum I),
- Administrative Segregation/Time Intervals. Lastly, Public Act 17-239, An Act Concerning Isolated Confinement and Correctional Staff Training and Wellness created a reporting requirement that identifies specific time intervals in which inmates have spent classified on Administrative Segregation during calendar year 2019 (AS) (See Addendum J).

An Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

Introduction

As you know, ASCA and Yale's Liman Center have since 2012 collected data to understand the use of restrictive housing. Through our questionnaires we have provided a series of national pictures detailing the numbers of people housed, the length of their stay, and policy reforms. As in the past, after responses to this questionnaire are in and a draft report compiled, ASCA members will receive a copy for comments. After we review comments, suggestions, and corrections, the report will be revised for publication.

After ASCA-Liman began in 2012, several jurisdictions have enacted statutes requiring reporting on some aspects of restrictive housing. Much of our survey overlaps with the requirements of those statutes. In a few areas, we have revised questions to facilitate compliance in jurisdictions where reporting is required.

Instructions and Definitions

The definition of the term "restrictive housing" in this survey is separating prisoners from the general population and holding them in cell for an average of 22 or more hours per day, for 15 or more continuous days.

Please respond with data on all forms of restrictive housing populations, whether called administrative segregation, disciplinary segregation, protective custody, intensive management, or another term. Further, please include prisoners held in single and in double cells. Please provide numbers as of July 15, 2019, if possible. Otherwise, specify the date of the information provided. PLEASE COMPLETE THE SURVEY BY OCTOBER 1, 2019.

Please either answer the survey in one session or download the attached PDF version, provide answers, and then input them in one session into Qualtrics.

Note: if you have questions before answering, please contact ASCA-Liman at ascalimansurvey@yale.edu or call us at (203) 436-3532. As we sometimes need to clarify information, please answer the question requesting the name and title of the person we should contact.

Q8. For all facilities for which you can provide data on restrictive housing, do you regularly collect information on HOW LONG each prisoner is in restrictive housing (length of time)?

Yes

Yes, but with the following caveats:

Data is specific to individual infractions and incidents.

No (please explain):

Q9.

In what year did your jurisdiction begin to regularly track length of time? Regularly track means systematically collecting information at regular intervals on how long prisoners are in restrictive housing, whether the data collection is done on paper or by computer.

1970 ▼

Q10. Do the numbers you provided in Question 7 include the time that those individuals spent in restrictive housing before your jurisdiction started regularly tracking length of time? (For example, if you started regularly tracking in 2008, do the numbers include time spent in restrictive housing before 2008?)

- Yes.
- No
- Other (please explain)

Q10a. Please indicate how you determined each person's length of time in restrictive housing before you began regularly tracking. (For example, by reviewing individual records).

Individual records can be reviewed by looking at overall scores and subcodes. When certain levels are raised or lowered there is an indication the inmate was removed from a restrictive status. If there were no changes to certain score/subcodes then the inmate continually remains on that status. Continuation of a status can be tracked based on the inmates behavior and infractions.

Q11. Do you track whether individuals who were released from restrictive housing are returned to restrictive housing during the same term of incarceration?

- Yes
 No

Q11a. Please provide the numbers of prisoners in restrictive housing who were returned to restrictive housing in the following time periods.

Of the prisoners released from restrictive housing between July 1, 2017 and June 30, 2018, how many were returned within 7 days?

Of the prisoners released from restrictive housing between July 1, 2017 and June 30, 2018, how many were returned within 7-29 days?

How does your jurisdiction define serious mental illness? Please provide the definition you use (specify if using a diagnostic manual from the health sciences and which version).

An inmate with a Mental Health (MH) score of 4-5 is considered our highest mental health level. This level can change and be lowered. If an inmate is placed as a MH 4-5 they are usually prescribed a psychoactive drug. The raising or lowering of a score can only be done by a mental health professional.

These inmates were classified as MH level 4-5 during the date of this survey and this is the length they have been on their restrictive status. This doesn't mean that during their total time on restrictive status they were classified as a MH 4-5. Their level can decrease and increase when needed. Long term MH4 inmates are housed and managed differently. If an inmate is on a restrictive status and remains a MH 4-5 for a long period of time, their restrictive status is suspended for MH treatment.

Q22. How are prisoners identified as transgender within your system? For example, by self-identification or medical records.

Connecticut has implemented Administrative Directive 8.17, Gender Non-Conforming as the governing policy. Within this policy there are multiple avenues to identify gender non-conforming needs. Some include self-reporting, mental health input, review of medical records (including community records and other agency documentation).

Q52. What is the policy regarding step-down or transition programs, including whether a prisoner may be released directly from restrictive housing to the community and/or to the general population? Step-down or transition programs refers to a process by which prisoners are gradually returned from restrictive housing to the general population or to the community through some form of programming or phases of decreasing restriction.

Step-down and transition programs are essentially built into the restrictive status. Each status has phases which, as an inmate progresses allows them more opportunity for privileges. Progression through programming to the next phase acts as a step down until the inmate is ready for general population. For AS release into the community all efforts are made to remove the inmate from the restrictive status so they are not released right from restrictive status to the community.

These questions ask about release from restrictive housing to the community.

Q53. How many prisoners during calendar year 2018 were released directly from restrictive housing to the community without completing a step-down or transition program?

54. No inmates are removed from Administrative Segregation to the community. However, some inmates are released from SRG status. They are offered all discharge planning resources that general population receive.

Q54. How many prisoners during calendar year 2018 were released into the community not more than 30 days after having been in restrictive housing, without completing a step-down or transition program?

Q55. How many prisoners during calendar year 2018 were released from restrictive housing to the community via a step-down or transition program?

15

. These questions ask about release from restrictive housing to the general population.

Q56. How many prisoners during calendar year 2018 were released directly from restrictive housing to the general population without completing a step-down or transition program?

0. To complete a restrictive status program there are phases. Each phase is in itself a step down in which the inmate receives more privileges and out of cell time.

Q57. How many prisoners during calendar year 2018 were released from restrictive housing to the general population via a step-down or transition program?

100. Each phase is a step down, therefore 100 inmates completed all phases of a restrictive status and were placed back in general population.

Q58. Do you collect data on the number of individuals (whether in general population or restrictive housing) who return to prison after being released to the community (recidivism data)?

Yes

No

Q58a.

For the following questions, count people who were released from prison during calendar year 2015 and who returned to prison. Count both returns for new convictions and returns for technical violations. Count the number of prisoners released, not the number of releases.

Include only those prisoners who were released from prison because they completed their sentence, were released on parole or probation, or who received conditional release.

People who returned to prison within 12 months should also be counted among those returned to prison within 24 months and within 36 months. People who returned to prison within 24 months should also be counted among those returned to prison within 36 months. The percentage of people who returned to prison within 36 months should thus be greater than both the other two percentages.

For the following questions, include individuals who were in restrictive housing at any point during the incarceration from which they were released in 2015. Include individuals whether they were released directly from restrictive housing to the community or not. Do NOT count individuals who were never in restrictive housing or who were only in restrictive housing during a previous term of incarceration that ended before 2015.

The following questions ask about staffing and training for restrictive housing units.

Q61a. Is there a limit on overtime hours in restrictive housing units? (If so, specify)

No OT hours and selection for OT are in accordance with union contracts.

Q61b.

Are staff in restrictive housing rotated out of restrictive housing after a specified time period? (If so, specify the time period)

Every 56 days rosters are rotated and approved by supervisors.

Q62.
Do restrictive housing staff receive extra pay as salary or bonuses? (If so, specify parameters or amounts)

No

Q63.
Are other staffing policies different for restrictive housing?

Staff policies are set by unit post orders. Post orders govern the policy within the unit for operational issues. Restrictive Status policies govern provisions and management of inmates.

Q64. In an ideal situation, if your jurisdiction had the necessary resources, what number of hours per day or week do you believe prisoners should be out of cell?

Hours per day

With adequate resources and staffing our agency would like to maximize out of cell time while offering meaningful programs. In an ideal situation out of cell time would be balanced with maintaining safety and security.
